

Map 2- Identifying Peaks and Valleys

If leveraged and applied, we can use what we've learned from our history to inform our future. Take a moment and reflect on the peaks and valleys of your congregation throughout the years.

What were the high points? What were the low points? Record the highs and lows on the peaks and valleys below. Then reflect on the results with the questions that follow.

Drawing Conclusions:

1. What do your peak moments have in common?
2. What do your valleys have in common?
3. What types of experiences bring out your best?
4. What peaks and valleys would others say have been influential in your congregation's history?
5. What lessons can you learn from your past peaks and valleys?
6. How can these lessons inform future growth and development?
